

Honours' Night 2009

The ACJC education is known for combining the academic, sports, aesthetics, community work and public speaking as well as an inculcation of values for an education that acknowledges God. The ACJC education is a well-rounded one that will keep us relevant today and in future times.

Our commitment to develop our students as whole persons is emphasized through our training programmes, events & performances, allocation of resources and major occasions like the Honours Night which recognises CCA achievements and service to the college. We know that the academic qualifications and intellectual capacity of our students will see them through their tertiary education and later in their contribution to the economy as useful working adults. However it is their development as whole persons – cognitively, physically, emotionally, socially, morally and spiritually – that will see them through life.

This year, I am pleased to report that ACJC will receive the MOE Sustained Achievement Awards in the area of the Sports (our 11th award), Aesthetics (our 8th Award) and Physical Fitness (our 8th award). Together with the 5-year Outstanding Development Award for Character Development and the 5-year Best Practice Award for Teaching and Learning awarded last year, this speaks for our emphasis on holistic development. To that effect MOE recognised ACJC with the 5-year School Distinction Award last year. This award recognises the exemplary systems and processes that have led to sustained achievements by our students.

While I am happy with these awards, I must say that our actions have solely been directed by the holistic development of each student. The awards are just validation that we are approaching our educational programme in the right way.

(Extract from Speech by Mrs Kelvyna Chan, P/ACJC)